Dão Wines - 5 days

In this region the vineyards are located between 400 and 700 meters in altitude and on soils where pine and corn crops predominate. The Dão region, surrounded by mountains that protect it from the winds, produces wines with a high capacity for aging in the bottle.

The Dão area is located in the Beira Alta region, in the center of northern Portugal. The geographical conditions are excellent for wine production: the mountains of Caramulo, Montemuro, Buçaco and Estrela protect the vineyards from the influence of winds. The region is extremely mountainous, however the altitude in the south is less high. The 20,000 hectares of vineyards are mostly between 400 and 700 meters in altitude and develop on schistose (in the south of the region) or shallow granitic soils. The climate in Dão is simultaneously influenced by the Atlantic and the interior, which is why winters are cold and rainy while summers are hot and dry.
